CHAIR'S WELCOME MESSAGE

As Chair of the Department of Business Administration and Tourism and Hospitality Management, I am delighted to welcome you to the start of another exciting academic year. Whether you are beginning your journey with us or returning to continue your studies, I am confident that this year will be both rewarding and memorable.

For over forty years, the Department of Business and Tourism at the Mount Saint Vincent University has offered high-quality degrees, certificates, and diplomas, both in person and virtually. Our faculty and staff are committed to creating a supportive, engaging, and excellent learning environment.

Over the summer, we have been preparing a full calendar of events for the Fall and Winter semesters that will allow you to connect with each other, faculty, alumni, and industry leaders. Highlights include the Sustainable Business Tour, the Local Entrepreneur and Cultural Tour, Fireside Chat Series, Case Competitions and Career Week specialists' panels, to name a few! In addition, you will find opportunities to participate in case competitions, attend conferences and business mixers, and other professional networking events that will sharpen your skills and expand your connections.

These events encompass our department's desire to provide you with an array of exceptional enhanced learning experiences that go beyond the academic and theoretical aspects. Through our exclusive Learning Passport Program, every time you participate in select events, you become eligible to gain bonus points in most business and tourism courses. Beyond academics, I encourage you to get involved with our Business & Tourism Society (BTS), where you can take part in student-led initiatives, leadership opportunities, and community activities.

This year, I encourage students to continue pursuing their interests, work hard to achieve their goals, and get as involved as possible within the Mount

It Starts with Hello: The Power of Faculty Relationships

One of MSVU’s greatest strengths is small class sizes and supportive faculty. Here, your professors know your name, not just your student ID number. That connection makes it easier to ask questions, get guidance, and even explore valuable opportunities like research assistantships, professional networking, or co-op placements. Building strong relationships with your professors can open doors, from career advice and job referrals to personalized recommendation letters for scholarships.

So say hello, ask a question, or drop by office hours. You might be surprised where it leads.

Dr. Emily Ballantyne

Acting Director

Teaching and Learning Centre

emily.ballantyne@msvu.ca

Dr. Emily Ballantyne from MSVU Teaching and Learning Centre outlines both the benefits and risks of using generative AI in academics.

One of the key advantages she points out is AI's ability to personalize the learning experience. Students can utilize AI tools to interact with their study materials in various ways that suit their learning styles and request instant feedback. It can help identify learning gaps, assist with writing and revision, and support preparation for assessments, making it a useful tool when used responsibly.

However, she also warns about the disadvantages and potential risks. Overusing AI can prevent students from developing key academic skills like writing, researching, critical thinking, and information retention. Generative AI tools are also prone to errors, known as “hallucinations”, where the tool produces inaccurate or misleading information. She stresses that students must act as fact-checkers and always verify AI-generated information using reliable academic sources like the MSVU Library.

Most importantly, using AI without permission or outside of assignment guidelines can lead to academic integrity violations. Professors don't need AI detectors because they rely on their experience to recognize when something isn't right. Dr. Ballantyne emphasizes that students must follow each professor's specific guidelines, ask questions when unsure, treat AI as a learning partner, and always use it ethically to support your education, not replace your own effort.

Using AI Wisely

STUDENT GUIDE: SHOULD I USE GENERATIVE AI?

A flowchart titled "Student Guide: Should I Use Generative AI?" guides students through key questions on AI permission and responsible use.

Ethical Issues with Generative AI

Inaccuracies and Hallucinations

AI-generated content may contain inaccurate information. Accuracy of AI-generated content can vary widely, depending on the particular tool, its training data, and the prompt provided. Because AI uses probability to generate content, it can provide false information, which is called a hallucination. For example, ChatGPT has been known to create false citations that appear to be real sources, but do not actually exist.

Intellectual Property and Academic Integrity

Generative AI tools can pose risks to your intellectual property, and can infringe on the intellectual property of others. How the training data for an AI tool is gathered, whether it includes copyright-protected material, and whether proper permissions to use copyright-protected material have been acquired, are all important considerations.

Meet our New Department Chair

DR. MARIA MATTHEWS

The Department of Business and Tourism is excited to welcome Dr. Maria Matthews as its new Chair. With a rich background that blends international academic achievement with decades of hands-on experience in the tourism and hospitality sectors, Dr. Matthews brings a global perspective and deep industry insight to her new role.

Hear Dr. Maria Matthews talk about her new role at MSVU

Originally from the UK, Dr. Maria Matthews immigrated to Canada 25 years ago and has since built an impressive career spanning over 30 years in tourism and hospitality management and education. What attracted her to MSVU was the university's mission and commitment to inclusive education. She was drawn to the principles of providing education for all and fostering community engagement.

Her academic credentials include a PhD in Tourism Management from the School of Business and Law at the University of Brighton (UK), a Master of Business Administration in Tourism and Hospitality Management from AIB (Australia), and a Bachelor of Tourism Management (Hons) from BU (UK).

When it comes to her teaching philosophy, Maria emphasizes the importance of going beyond theory. "Theoretical underpinning is very, very important, but one thing I do bring to the classroom is my industry experience. I do believe that hands-on applied learning is crucial in today's environment, especially when it comes to developing the practical work skills that employers are looking for." Additionally, she places strong value on mentorship in student development, noting how influential her own mentors were in shaping her path. She believes that professors have a responsibility to give back to students, and sees mentorship as a key way to do so, not just academically, but in offering guidance around careers and life. She actively looks for students who stand out, show curiosity, and seek meaningful interaction beyond the classroom.

As Chair, supporting the department's faculty, staff, and students is another of Dr. Matthews's goals. She plans to continue offering professional development for faculty and administration, while also expanding experiential learning opportunities for students both inside and outside the classroom.

MSVU's Business and Tourism Department already offers dynamic initiatives such as the Learning Passport (LP) program, and Social Enterprise for a Day (SE4D). Since introducing a case competition last year, Dr. Matthews is eager to expand both internal and external case competition opportunities, as well as create more avenues for conference participation, research involvement, and consulting projects to further provide experiential learning opportunities for students.

Dr. Matthews's vision is clear: to foster meaningful, experience-based learning that prepares students for success in the competitive business, tourism, and hospitality fields. We look forward to her leadership as we continue to provide an engaging, inclusive, and industry-connected educational experience for all MSVU students.

From Loneliness to Lifelong Memories

MY MSVU JOURNEY

Jessica Kapoor

Written by Jessica Kapoor
A Proud MSVU Graduate

When I first arrived at Mount Saint Vincent University, I remember feeling a deep sense of loneliness. It was my first day, and I was in a new country, surrounded by unfamiliar faces. But amidst all that uncertainty, I couldn't help but be amazed by the beauty of the campus — perched quietly by the sea, with the wind whispering through the trees and the water sparkling under the sunlight. I knew I was in a special place.

Those first few days were tough, but I slowly began to find my rhythm — thanks to the incredible support of the MSVU staff and faculty. Every professor, advisor, and even the cafeteria staff had a role in helping me settle in. They didn't just teach me academically — they guided me with kindness, patience, and belief in my potential. Their encouragement made me feel like I truly belonged.

One of my favorite memories is studying in the campus canteen with a coffee in hand, books spread out, and friends around me. We laughed, shared ideas, helped each other revise before exams, and sometimes just sat in silence, enjoying the calmness. And the library — oh, how many hours I spent there, finding peace between pages, and feeling inspired by the quiet determination of everyone around me.

What makes MSVU so special is its breathtaking environment. Every time I needed a break, I would simply step outside and let the ocean breeze clear my mind. The university is truly a gem, surrounded by nature's beauty — it felt like studying in the heart of a postcard.

Another thing I'll always cherish is how much I enjoyed giving presentations in class. Standing up there, nervous but excited, I began to find my voice. With each presentation, I grew more confident — and I now carry that strength with me wherever I go.

To all new students — embrace your journey. You're in for a life-changing experience, and I promise, you will grow in ways you never imagined. MSVU will not only educate you, it will shape you, support you, and stay with you forever.

With love and gratitude,

Jessica
